Health and Wellness Tip for January

Winter is definitely upon us. Are you a winter lover or hater? Regardless of your stance, below are some thoughts on how to better APPRECIATE Winter:

The Scandinavians can help us increase our appreciation of winter by beginning with changing our mind-set.

- Try appreciating winter in your thoughts and your speech.
- When it comes to your thoughts, start by figuring out what you like about the winter. Maybe it's the chance to light fires, even during the daytime.
- Maybe it's an opportunity to get absorbed in cooking, or reading, or art. Maybe it's the way the world goes quiet just after a fresh snowfall.
- Then, whatever it is, try to consciously focus on those things. Having a positive wintertime mind-set doesn't mean denying the realities of winter or pretending you like every aspect of winter.
- When it snows, it's equally true that you might have to shovel your driveway as it is that the light is diffuse and beautiful. But which one of these you pay more attention to makes a huge difference in how you experience that snowfall.
- Appoint yourself a wintertime ambassador this year, and encourage everyone around you to notice what they like about the winter as well.
- If you're trying to shift your wintertime mind-set, try starting with whatever strategy feels easiest or most appealing to you.
